In a cold country, called the Frozen Land,
lives Hector, a little snowman.

Before going to bed, Hector's mother tells him the story of the golden snowflake:

“The snowman, who will find the golden snowflake, is going to be the luckiest snowman, because he won't melt.

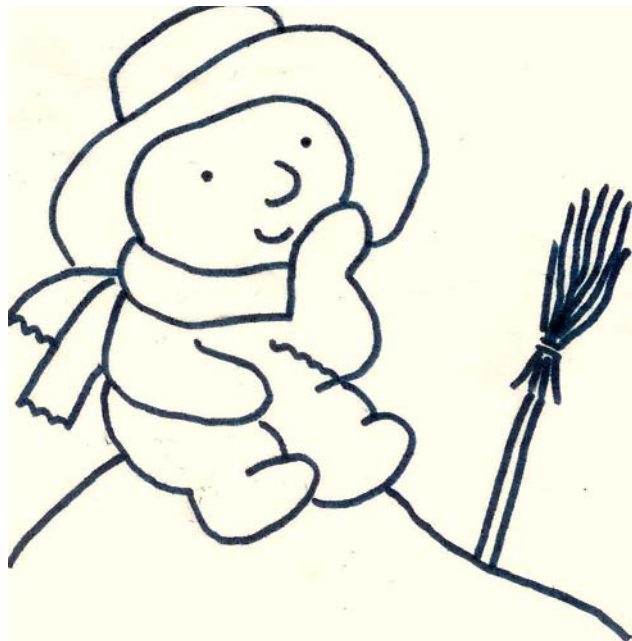

The next morning Hector visits the forest animals.

The owl, the reindeer, the fox and the bear wait for him.

Hector tells the story of the golden snowflake to his friends and they are going to help him to look for one.

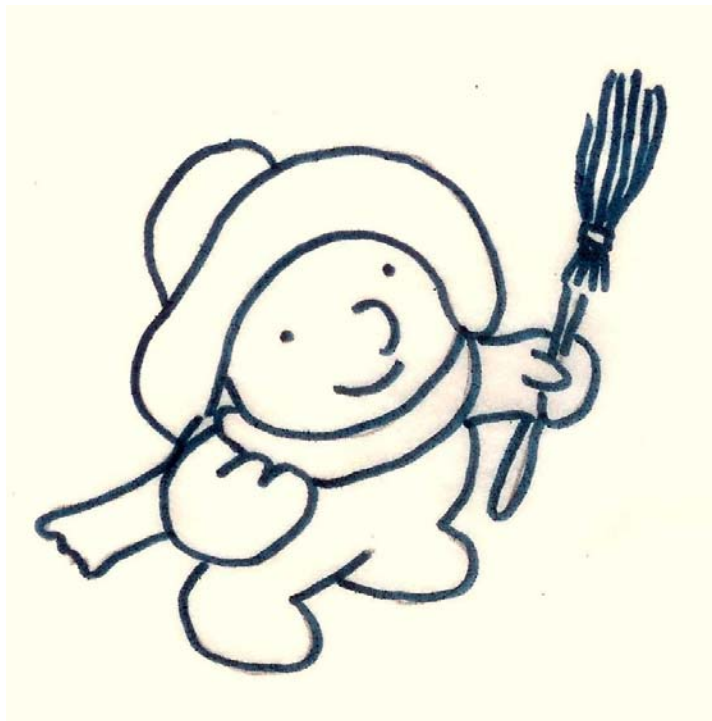

They search and search until they are hungry and the bear shouts: "Lunch is ready!"

The animals get hot chocolate and of course Hector some ice-cream.

After lunch Hector says good bye to his friends and walks home. He is a little bit sad, because he didn't find the snowflake.

It begins to snow and a little golden snowflake falls down on Hector. Now Hector is the luckiest snowman in the whole wide world.
